

CNFS ambassadors for 2026–2027 take flight

On October 8, the CNFS at Collège Boréal welcomed its new group of ambassadors for 2026–2027.

This first meeting marked the start of what promises to be a year of learning, collaboration, and student engagement.

The ambassadors came together to get to know one another and learn about their role. They discussed their backgrounds, career aspirations and shared desire to raise awareness of careers in French-language health care. Their conversations highlighted the group's varied experiences and enthusiasm.

The meeting also outlined the ambassadors' responsibilities, the tools available to support them throughout the year and several activities on the calendar. As CNFS representatives among their peers, the ambassadors will promote the Consortium's initiatives, share professional development opportunities and support recruitment, networking and community engagement activities.

Beyond their promotional role, the ambassadors will help build connections among students, CNFS-supported programs and health care partners. Their involvement will help raise awareness of health careers and the many opportunities available to Francophone students.

The CNFS warmly thanks the members of this new group for their enthusiasm and commitment. We are proud to have their leadership and support to promote careers in French-language health care and help develop a strong, dedicated next generation of health professionals.

We wish them a year filled with discoveries, achievements, and opportunities to grow personally and professionally.

About the CNFS

The Consortium national de formation en santé (CNFS) is a pan-Canadian group of sixteen colleges and universities that offer French-language study programs in various health disciplines, as well as regional partners, with the financial support of Health Canada.
